A note from Assistant Principal Fitzgerald

Dear Students and Parents,

As we enter into our third month of school, it's important to keep our focus and remain on task. This time of year is a time for celebration, family, and a time for giving thanks. These are all fine things that make life beautiful, but it's easy to lose focus on the work while we enjoy the festivities. Many students have made great academic strides this year, and many more have goals and accomplishments in their sights. Too often I hear students who are frustrated with their work say "I can't do this." What I say to them is "yet." Please remember the power of yet. Anything that seems hard now can be accomplished with hard work and perseverance. Next time, say "I can't do this yet, but I will."

Enjoy the holidays, and stay the course.

Sincerely,
Mr. J. Fitzgerald, AP
